New Possible Cause Of Infertility Among Healthy Couples

April 30, 2023

The majority of all healthy couples dream to have a child. But some of them have problems with childbirth. What is the cause of infertility? During our work and research in typology we have found something new. These new things can describe the problem and the possible solution about why some healthy couples cannot have a child. According to our observations, all people meet each other and some of them have different temperament. What is temperament? We are speaking about the temperaments of Hippocrates and Galen. These temperaments are stable and innate. There are four of them: melancholic, sanguine, phlegmatic and choleric.

As we mentioned above, each person has only one temperament for a lifetime. This is a fact we already shown before. When couples meet each other, they usually choose a partner of the completely opposite character. And this is a right choice. Such people have a good exchange of emotions, some physical attraction and interests expressed in different opposite things that also create a mystery in their relationship. By the way, this is like a magnet, where plus and minus have a gravity effect, but at the same time plus and plus or minus and minus repel. But let's get back to the topic.

When some people (infrequently), are falling in love and have sexual attraction with each other, they sometimes forget about the fact that they may be similar in something. For example, a guy with melancholic temperament met a girl with the same temperament as he has. Of course, they can like each other, but both of them have a negative temperament (melancholic and choleric temperaments are considered negative). Or, as another example, when a sanguine guy meets a phlegmatic girl, they both are quite positive. What is the main problem in this case?

People Of Similar Temperament May Have A Stable Problem With Childbirth

Why is this happening? How did we find it out? In a mutual partner life, people with similar temperaments may have some problems with pregnancy and childbirth. These things were observed by us among people we know in reality. The temperaments of those people were discovered using our experience and methods. After we have discovered their temperaments we were unpleasantly surprised by the facts that arise. These facts clearly show that sanguine + sanguine have problems with pregnancy and giving a birth.

The same negative things may also happen in pairs: phlegmatic + phlegmatic, melancholic + melancholic, choleric + choleric. Couples, where choleric + melancholic and sanguine + phlegmatic may also have the same problems with childbirth.

Possibly, It Is The Main Cause Of Infertility Among Healthy Couples According To Our Observations

Of course, for many people this is a sad story, but it is our direct duty to share this information with you. People who really like and value each other should not lose heart no matter of what happens. This is also a good way to live in such a manner.

Our test of innate qualities can determine the human temperaments and much more. Those who are interested, can go through the registration here: https://worldtypology.com/test-of-innate-qualities/
